

WFH -Thursday May 7th

Hello all,

Tomorrow is VE day and a bank holiday, why not spend today's 'learning' finding out about what VE day was and what it represents. You may also then want to find out a bit about the war and things that affected children like evacuation and rationing. There are lots of great sites (National Arboretum, Imperial War Museum etc with good resources for adults and children).

Over the next few days we are expecting new announcements from the government around the 'next steps' with regard to lockdown and schools. We have the same information at the same time as you ! Once we know what the proposals are (hopefully more instruction than 'guidance') then we will plan (we already are) and share our next steps with you.

Take care and best wishes

Mr Batstone
