

WFH update - April 30th

Hello all,

Hope all is good, slightly different weather but we have been very lucky with the weather so far. There is more than enough work from curriculum updates and previous WFH updates as well as any other ideas/resources you may have already. Project ideas alongside some skills work is a good approach. Just online work is not a good idea as it will be different when we return to school.

It has been amazing to see the work and video clips coming in from home, keep them coming. Teachers receive them via admin (Mrs Johnson) and reply via admin or they will use some of your ideas or questions on their update the following week. Paper is being replenished in the entrance hall for those who can get there safely (one pack per child).

As we have said before WFH is NOT school and is very different (please do not compare the two), you can only do your best with what you have. The relationship you have with your children as a 'teacher' is very different, for some it may be easy, it may be hard or it may be a battle ! Just do what you can, when you can and in the best way you can. Your own perceptions of education and how things are taught may be different to what your children are used to and remember they are at home not school.

In reality they have not actually missed that much school as this is a shorter half term with lots of bank holidays and we have had the Easter holidays. Just try to keep your child in good habits so they are ready when we return to school (no news as yet and no plans as yet).

Challenges (all shared before)

1. School adults have completed a 'secret or stealth reader' challenge and some of you have sent 'unusual reading' poses. Keep them coming. The school adult one is on the school website under 'Madley TV.'
2. Virtual school games challenge - other schools are up and running and sharing on Twitter - the standing long jump.
3. NHS inspirational and uplifting posters for The Nuffield Hospital.

Have a look on the school website (www.madleyprimayschool.co.uk) for some of the learning that has been shared.

Kind regards

Mr Batstone

Attachments

Stay At Hom