INCREDIBLE TIPS ON BALLET

Tutus, pointe shoes and men in tights are what come to mind when someone mentions ballet. Yet Ballet is so much more than that. Said to be the most difficult genre to master, ballet is a rigorous style of dance that is the foundation of most forms of dance training.

It is usually set, but not limited to, orchestrated music and is often the first dance style a child will experience as they begin their dance classes. Ballet shoes are usually worn until the dancer's feet have developed enough strength to progress into pointe shoes, often happens around the age of 12 and only after the students have been given permission by their teacher. Ballet is an excellent teaching tool for all dancers as it is a complex mixture of technique, coordination and musicality.

Upcycling the new trend

Upcycling has become the new trend due to the impact of fashion, recently the environment has become very unhealthy, and there is a lot of plastic in the sea, so upcycling helps the environment. Upcycling is basically reusing old clothes and making them come to life again, it's so much better than buying new clothes.

Upcycling has become quite popular recently, since you can design your own clothes. Here are some upcycled kids clothes.

This is one of our items that we upcycled, it was a dark blue flowery dress with no straps and a blue stylish mac without a belt. Then the dress was too long so we trimmed the bottom off and cut some flowers out from the dress to stick on the coat.

This is our second outfit that we upcycled, we had a old, black sequine dress, and pock-a-dot see through t-shirt that I put over the dress, then I made a handbag out of a white small t-shirt and then finally, we attached a black long sleeve t-shirt to the bottom of the dress because it was too short. We cut the sleeves of the t-shirt.

As the beaming light from the lighthouse whirl

ed in the sky, reflecting on the sea. The clouds slowly parted, emerging the bright full moon. While the lighthouse stood broadly on the peak of the cliff. Some birds tweeted loudly as the lighthouse light woke them up.

A little way along the coast, a small village stood happily under the lighthouses watch. Fishermen stood cheering in the pub that was in the heart of the village; the roof tiles groaned in the wind, and small sash windows creaked in the breeze. The village children who were safely tucked into their beds didn't notice the wind or the fishermen cheering.

Herman had just sat down after doing the evenings of his beloved lighthouse, when he heard a knock on the door. Herman got up from his armchair and went to open the door

"Evening," Herman, said to a young fisherman whose face he recognised from the village.

"Evening sir," said the fisherman "I've picked this letter up for you from in town today."

"Thank you, that was kind," Herman said as he took the letter "Night then"

"Night sir," the fisherman said turning his back on Herman before walking back off down the hill, to the Inn, where he was going to spend the night.

Herman closed the door gradually, glancing at the letter
