WHATS GOING TO BE DIFFERENT ABOUT EURO 2020

The Euros is a footballing event that happens once every four years in which case five this year due to covid-19. The first Euros started in 1958 and was won by the Soviet Union beating Yugoslavia 2-1 in Paris. Soviet Union and Yugoslavia are both not countries anymore because the nations from both teams left that country because they wanted to be their own nation.

In the Euros the top two teams from four in the group automatically qualify for the round of 16 and four of the third placed teams go through to the knock out round so there will be enough teams to play in the knock out round if you loose your out. If you get all the way to the final winning the round of sixteen, quarter-final and semi-final You will get to play for the European trophy which will be held in Wembley stadium on Sunday 11th at eight oclock.

In this tournament, there are fifty one football matches and they play with four different types of footballs

In this compotition there are some big teams including France, England, Portugal, Belgium, Italy Germany and Spain but the new teams like North Macedonia Sweden and Finland could be a surprise to the community.

Portugal are the 2016 remaining champions beating France 2-1 in extra time also losing their star player Chrisiano Ronaldo in the 20th minute. In their group they have Germany, France, and Hungary it is a very tough group for Hungary because of three amazing teams that have won the competition all at least once

Group A have two time champions Italy and also wales which have been in this competition last euros and got to the semi-final. This group also has Switzerland and Turkey which are not the favourites to come out of this group but anything can happen in the euros

The format for this euros is very simple six games in each group then eight games in the round of 16 then there is four quarter finals and then two semi-finals and the final to have a chance to get a trophy or runner up which is second place a medal.

Who's going to win the Euros?

Extraordinary Cars

This year lots of new cars are coming out: the Audi e-Tron GT, Jaguar XF, BMW i4 and many more. Many car brands are making better cars for driving and keeping the environment clean. As the world population grows more and more cars are being made and they are affecting the environment. Are electric cars better for the world?

Industry

The UK is a major centre for engine manufacturing, in 2018 around 2.71 million engines were produced for overseas companies. It is a vital part of the UK economy worth more than £78.9 billion.

The UK car industry has historically been a world leader, renowned for its engineering, quality and affordable option. It has also been a huge employer of various people with different skill sets with some companies employing different generations of the same family.

Latest Cars

The best new cars coming out are cars that are comfy, affordable and cars that look modern and futuristic. New cars are trying to make it a comfy ride by using the right amount of padding, which they will need because the average British driver will spend about 99 days of their life stuck in traffic!

Safety First

Safety also plays a huge part in people's decision on the type of vehicle they buy, and the car industry needs to abide by some pretty stringent safety rules protecting the drivers, passengers and also other road users and pedestrians. These have been made mandatory with all cars in this modern time.

Electric Cars

Are electric cars better or worse for the environment? Electric cars are getting a lot more popular in the UK, currently there is around 540,000 electric cars on the road. Research has shown that electric cars are better for the environment. They emit fewer greenhouse gases and air pollutants than petrol or diesel cars. Electric vehicles produce zero direct emissions, which specifically helps improve air quality in urban areas. All Tesla vehicles produce significantly less CO2 than any gasoline-powered competitor – and if an electric vehicle is powered by solar energy, essentially no CO2 is produced at all. The environmental impact occurs before an electric car has left the factory floor. CO2 emissions from electric car production are 59% higher than the level in production of traditional engine vehicles.

People will continue to require cars to move around for their day-to-day activities for work and leisure, we couldn't live without them. However, what is important is protecting the environment for future generations and ensuring cars are safe for people to drive and safe for others around them. As long as the car industry applies thought to both those concerns and NOT just consider the financial gains then people can continue to enjoy cars for many years to come.

Chamiah Dewey: new fashion sensation

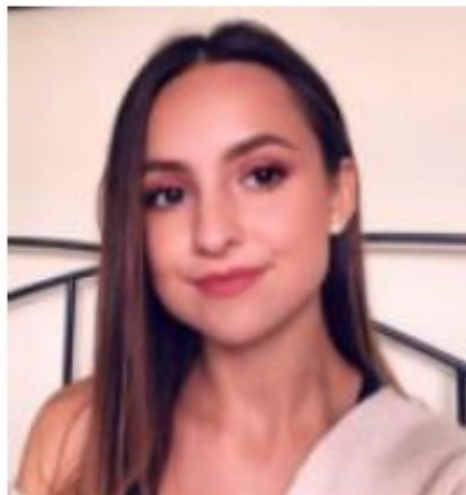

Chamiah Dewey, who is a twenty-two years old fashion designer, is taking the next step for women's fashion, by designing a unique fashion brand, which designs and makes clothing for people with dwarfism.

Along with attending London school of fashion from the age of eighteen and having a full time teaching job, Chamiah Dewey has started her own remarkable fashion brand (Chamiah Dewey fashion) and is now on her way to starting her own collection, which will be starting five of her amazing pieces.

Because of the unique body shape and height of little people (people with dwarfism) Chamiah has created a size chart by using different measurements from a variety of different little people, which will help her to design multiple pieces but in different sizes.

"I once spoke to a little person and she explained how hard it was to do everything, which inspired me to make clothing for them"

In the future Chamiah is hoping to design clothing for men and also clothing for people with different disabilities. She is hoping to launch her collection in August.

The fashion world is ready for this new business and hopefully we will see a lot more amazing businesses like Chamiah Dewey Fashion.

CHAMIAH DEWEY

Hello! My name is Chamiah Dewey. I am a Fashion Design and Development student, studying at The London College of Fashion. I am currently studying on the Enterprise Diploma in Professional Studies (EDIPS) at LCF for my placement year. The aim of the placement is to facilitate the acceleration of an idea into a resilient proposition, culminating in an MVP (minimum viable product), ready to take to market for Summer 2021.

"Chamiah Dewey" will be a sustainable, inclusive and adaptive womenswear brand, that aims to make dressing easier for women with disabilities, we will also have specialist collections for women with Dwarfism. The collections for LP women will be developed using extensive research and catering to the wants and needs of those women and their bodies. We are also curating a community of empowered women on our social media's to share ideas and discuss inclusive fashion.

Farming updates

This week's news on farming is about the Royal Highland Showcase & how it has been different due to coronavirus restrictions.

The Royal Highland Showcase took place on the 14th to the 20th of June in Edinburgh. It is said that it had the best livestock judging, equestrian, food & drink and rural skills. This was livestreamed to a global audience on the Ingliston showground in Edinburgh.

Including Sheep, cows, donkeys; there was a total of 6000 animals in attendance. The Queens Cup is something that rotates between the champions of the types of livestock at the show. In 2015 there was a whopping 20 breeds of 1000 cattle, and more than 500 birds!

If you like farming and you're 10 to 28 (in Scotland it is 14 to 30 years old) you can join the young farmers club, where you can do acting, work

Why organic food is best

Organic meat, vegetables and fruit are free from pesticides, artificial fertiliser and chemicals. Organic food is also healthier for you to eat.

Organic food can sometimes be more expensive to buy, because no artificial fertilisers are used and they do not produce the same quantity.

Some examples of popular organic food are:

Dairy

Milk Cream
Cheese Butter
Yogurts

Vegetables

Carrots Peas
Broccoli Cabbage
Potatoes

Fruit

Tomatoes Apples
Strawberries Pears
Raspberries

Meat

Beef Chicken
Lamb Pork
Turkey

Has tik tok become an opportunity for small businesses to blow up?

Most people and especially teenagers know about the social media platform tik tok and how it influences many young people with its amazing trends, dance videos, cooking recipes and ways to advertise businesses either big or small.

During lockdown many teenagers took the opportunity to make themselves some extra cash and jump in on the trend of starting up a small business, this can simply be anything, from buying and selling sweets to making your own jewelry. Many people enjoy supporting and buying from these businesses because they are supporting young people to their way to success.

If you're thinking about starting a small business and using tik tok as a way of advertising your business there are many tips and tricks on making the business go viral such as replying to fan comments, hopping on to the biggest trends, using trendy hashtags to get more views and posting frequently to keep your followers updated.

Although some of these businesses may not have worked out, many of them are continuing to grown and are on their way to success they are also using tik tok to help them along the way.

Ralph Lauren: then and now

Ralph Lauren is a fashion designer and billionaire businessman, best known for the Ralph Lauren Corporation. He was born on the 14th October 1939 in the Bronx, New York. Ralph was born Ralph Lifshitz, the third of four siblings. His parents were Frieda and Frank Lifshitz. He has become well known for his collection of rare automobiles, some of which have been displayed in museum exhibits. He went to Baruch College in Manhattan, where he studied business for two years.

How he became a designer

Ralph's first job in the fashion industry was in retail at Brooks Brothers before developing a line of neckties. Ralph Lauren began his career with the simple goal of creating clothes he wanted to wear. At 28 years-old, Lauren worked for the tie manufacturer Beau Brummell. He persuaded the company's president to let him start his own line. As his success began to grow, Ralph grew his passion further and launched a clothing line.

What he is most famous for?

Ralph started The Ralph Lauren Corporation in 1967 with men's ties. Drawing on his interests in sports, Lauren named his first full line of menswear "Polo" in 1968. He worked in a single showroom in the Empire State Building and made deliveries to stores himself. By 1969, the Manhattan department store Bloomingdale's sold Lauren's men line exclusively. Ralph Lauren launched a line of tailored shirts for women, which introduced the Polo player emblem, appearing on the shirt cuff. The first full women's collection was launched the following year. Ralph Lauren is one of the most legendary fashion designers of all time, whose career has already spanned over 50 years. Ralph Lauren currently has a net worth of around 8.86 billion dollars that is equivalent to 6.36 billion pounds.

Children's wear

In 1978, the Polo Ralph Lauren collection for children launched. This was a bold move for the brand because at a time the market for children's clothing wasn't clearly distinguished or widely desired. It wasn't until the 2000s that many designers realised the potential of this market and expanded into children's wear.

"I don't design clothes, I design dreams."

People ask how a kid from the Bronx can do preppy clothes. Does it have to do with class and money? It has to do with dreams."

IS PHOTOSHOPPING BECOMING A BAD THING?

Adobe Photoshop was made in 1987 by Thomas and John Knoll. It was originally created for displaying grayscale images on monochrome but is now sometimes used to edit people's bodies and makeup.

There are professional people who will edit basic things like backgrounds and brightness settings but the real problem is about people editing them or other people's bodies to look unrealistic and perfect. This can cause low self esteem, insecurities and anxiety towards adults and children.

Many famous celebrities have been photoshopped like Kim Kardashian, Jennifer Lawrence, Angelina Jolie and Kate Winslet, which are usually for photo shoots for magazines. Jennifer Lawrence spoke up about being edited in 2013 and Zendaya Coleman in 2016. Also, more people have talked about this subject too.

On a lot of fashion or makeup magazine covers, there are people who have been photoshopped or edited and this made the product they were promoting sell better. However, is this ethical?

Adobe Photoshop is now developed by Adobe Inc. and is available in 26 languages including American, English, Polish, Dutch and many more.

Upcycling clothes for new sustainable fashion

You should upcycle your clothes to help the environment. Upcycling is a good alternative to buying new clothes because it does not cost that much money and you can create a whole new wardrobe.

Upcycling is an easy way to change your clothes because there are many different things you can do with them: use fabric pens to draw or write things on, cut clothes up to make them into different types of outfits and stick pieces of fabric to different clothes.

You can easily change a pair of jeans into shorts with just a few things: scissors, fabric glue, pins, thread and a little bit of imagination.

All you need to do is cut the jeans into the length you want and then if you want something completely different you can chose some interesting fabric to add some detail.

You can also upcycle other household items such as furniture, which can easily be painted or teapots, which make fantastic plant pots.

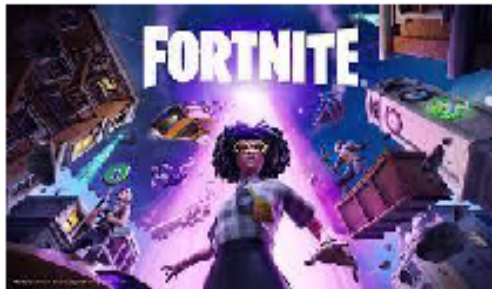

Latest upcycled clothing range from Fabric Fusion

Local fashion designers from Fabric Fusion have created two new upcycled outfits, which were made from previous items of clothing that were no longer wanted.

The local fashion designers decided to take photos and model these outfits in a natural environment: upcycling helps the environment and can also help to create amazing unique pieces of clothing that no one else will have. By doing this Fabric Fusion has demonstrated that you don't have to buy new, expensive or designer clothes to make a nice outfit.

Is gaming taking over the world?

Gaming, is getting more popular as everyday goes past; in 2021 over 1.3billion people are gaming at least 3 hours a week, which went up massively since 2015. PlayStation and Xbox are two of the biggest gaming brands, which are making and selling consoles in a flash, like the playstation5 and Xbox series x.

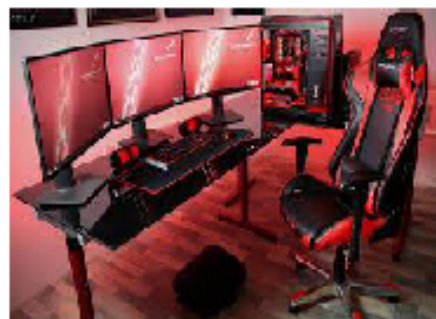

Companies are starting to make more games for young gamers to enjoy, one of the games they're making is another version of Call of Duties. One of the biggest games that has come out is fortnite this game has taken the whole gaming world to another level.

Fortnite, which is a shooting game that has attracted loads of you tubers to produce good content for their YouTube channels, has now hit over 350 million downloads.

Gaming for a long period of time is not good for your brain and your eye sight because if you're playing a gun game it can go to your brain and make you want to do something you're not allowed to do. Teenagers, are spending most of their time in their bedroom playing video games all day which is making them a lot more grumpy.
